

HARVESTING HOPE

By Justin Johnson | AMS

As the leaves begin to turn and a crispness fills the air, we are reminded of the beauty and renewal that each new season brings. Fall is a time when nature itself seems to wrap us in warmth and comfort, preparing us for the coming months. Just as the seasons change, we too are called to be agents of change in our communities—bringing the warmth and joy of Christ to those who may not yet know Him.

This season presents a unique opportunity. As we gather around bonfires, enjoy harvest festivals, and share meals with loved ones, let's be intentional about extending these moments of connection to our neighbors. The world around us may be cooling down, but our hearts should burn brightly with the love of Jesus.

Challenge yourself to step out of your comfort zone this fall. Invite someone new to a church event, share your testimony over a cup of coffee, or simply offer a listening ear to someone who is struggling. The harvest is plentiful, and now is the time to sow seeds of faith, hope, and love.

As the landscape around us transforms, let's be the catalyst for transformation in our communities. Together, we can be the hands and feet of Christ, spreading His joy and comfort to those who need it most.

In His service,
